Preserving Equality and Tolerance by the Transformation of the Mass Psyche through Diversity Education

Human Beings are Hardwired For Prejudice

Why?

Humans like most primates are both tribal and territorial. Our deep level instincts cause us to be suspicious or even hostile towards anyone we perceive as different.

Is this prejudice racial?

Though instinctual prejudice can and often is racial, the difference in race is secondary. Human beings are adept at dividing their fellow humans into two groups: us and them.

What is the solution?

Nothing short of retraining ourselves into seeing everyone as a part of our tribe.

How We Change the Public Consciousness?

The key is interaction:
The best way to change the perception of the individual towards those different from that individual is to encourage a social interaction between the varied facets of human culture. To accomplish this, increased grants and funding should be made for cultural awareness events and organizations.

It is far easier to train minds to see everyone as being the same than it is to unlearn prejudices later in life.

Transforming Public Education

Federalization of Public Schools:
By federizing public schools, funding for schools could be more evenly regulated, providing standardized distribution of federal and local educational taxes.

Expanded bussing

A mandatory lottery system to bus half of a districts student population to schools in neighboring districts.

School Culture

Student bodies will be encouraged to embrace a “School Culture” to create a common ground. This will be accomplished by a combination of unique school traditions and the institution of school uniforms.
